ALL SORTS.

—Rain is predicted soon.
—Rail is selling agricultural machinery like hot cakes.

—Dr. Lee and his father returned from California yesterday.

—Mr. Jessie Taggart of the Enterprise was in the city yesterday.

—Shaw will be ready to entertain visitors at his Springs in a few days.

—A great deal of beer was drunk yesterday owing to the water troubles.

—Superintendent Boyle says that the Alta stamps will begin dropping about the 27th. Probably the stock will begin dropping about the same time.

—The steamer Niagara, plying on Lake Tahoe, has been condemned by the Government Inspectors of steam vessels. She will probably be broken up.

—The Comstock papers are very complimentary of Carson by reason of the donation of $1,000 raised here. Carson people appreciate these kindly words.

—The bicycle club expect to be ready about July 4th. They will want about $20 apiece to appear in the procession, and expect bids from Reno and Virginia City.

—Mrs. B. Goldsmith of West Point, Nebraska is paying a visit to the Olcovich's who are her brothers. She is on her way to San Francisco and will remain here until after the 4th.

—Miss Ella Edwards will give a Kindergarten exhibition at the Opera House on Friday evening and donate the proceeds to the Comstock sufferers. The best of musical talent will assist.

—There will be a friendly game of base ball between the Resolutes of Virginia City, and the Amateurs of Carson, next Sunday. The gate receipts will be for the benefit of the Gould & Curry sufferers. Tickets to the ground will be fifty cents.

—Considerable complaint is made about the management of the school picnic that was recently held at Bower's Mansion. Hogging, gambling games were run on the grounds liquor was sold and a tough set of citizens generally were present. Drinking, fighting and carousing seemed to be the order of the day. Who is to blame for all this, no body seems to know, but it is understood that Prof. Bray was the man who engineered the business. It is also intimated that he shared the profits of the liquor trade that day. If this is the case there are probably few people in Virginia and Carson who will want their children to attend another picnic under such management.—Lyon County Times.

The Curry Mine.

Up to the present writing no news comes from the Comstock except that the relief shifts are hard at work. The Chronicle has the following:

Mr. Patton has hopes of finding them alive, and gives the following well grounded reasons: The men are all strong and healthy and are experienced miners. Anticipating that the fire might penetrate into the drift, they probably bulkheaded one of the crosscuts to keep out the gas and have retreated behind the bulkhead, where they are taking the air from the pines and calmly await the arrival of the rescuing party, which they are morally certain will spare no effort to release them from their living tomb.

All the material taken out in excavating must be raised to the level of the floor of the drift on the 1500 level by windlass power, which is very tedious and laborious work. The waste is then run out and dumped in a crosscut near the end of the lateral drift. With these disadvantages it is safe to say that under ordinary circumstances it would have required at least twenty days to accomplish the work, which will be completed in less than four, which could not have been done in any other mining district in the world in less than a month.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon it was momentarily expected that a hole would be broken through in blasting. If the men are alive they have of course taken the precaution to locate themselves far enough away from the point where connection will be made to escape injury from a shot that would break through the wall intervening between them and their rescuers.

CARSON'S WATER SUPPLY.

The Hains Choked With Dead Fish

For the past few days there has been considerable trouble with the water supply of the city. Many families have been unable to obtain water through the pipes and others complain that the water is muddy and foul with the remnants of dead fish. Yesterday an APPEAL reporter made a tour of inspection and found people considerably excited over the matter.

The boy who drives the watering cart said that the dead fish in the cart clogged the sprinklers so that he was obliged to clean it out. A lot of dead fish came out of the pipe in front of Zehner's store. The fish lay there all day and were inspected by scores of people.

Zehner says that he counted nine fish that came out of the pipe, beside fish bones and heads. The head and backbone of one decomposed fish must have belonged to a fish which, when alive weighed four pounds. The entrails and rotten flesh was mixed up and lay in the street all day causing a good deal of adverse comment relative to the Water Company. It is estimated that a large number of the pipes are choked with dead fish and it is almost impossible to tell where unless the pipes are torn up at great expense.

All day families who lived in the vicinity of artesian wells, were raiding the wells for water and those who owned the wells gave freely and rather laughed at the discomfiture of their neighbors.

The Water Company is thoroughly satisfied that it must improve its water supply and no longer have a fish pond to draw from. It was reported yesterday that the Company would begin to sink artesian wells at once, and by sinking quite a number secure an inexhaustible supply of pure and cold water for the use of the city.

Yesterday the Company began cleaning the reservoir and will give the works a thorough overhauling and put in considerable new pipe.

AN UNGRATEFUL JAP.

He Robs His Benefactor of $45.

Yesterday, Num the Chinese chair mender was in great distress. It appears that for some months past he had been harboring a Japanese boy who came to his cabin for shelter saying that he had formerly worked for Senator Stewart. Num maintained the Jap as comfortably as he was able for some months, when yesterday the boy disappeared.

Num found his trunk broken open and $45 in gold taken. Several articles of virtue, such as a bronze Chinese God of the 3d degree, some Chinese prayers to the Dragon, on red paper and a bust of Confucius. All had been taken by the ungrateful Jap. Num was about the street yesterday relating his troubles to the whites and telling them "Jap man no good." He is believed to have started for California via Glenbrook.

Married.

Yesterday the APPEAL office received an invoice of cake and wine from the wedding of Mr. George Cagwin and Miss Fanny Dorsey. They were married in this city the night before by Rev. Geo. R. Davis at the residence of Mrs. Dorsey. The young couple have grown up in Carson and have the best wishes of everybody. They have gone to house-keeping at once like sensible people and the APPEAL joins in the general congratulations.

Not Insured.

Only one miner in the Curry disaster was insured. Only a few months ago the agents of several insurance companies were on the Comstock, and several of the Curry victims were asked to insure, but declined. Life insurance is a duty that every man owes to his family.

—The Carson Valley ranchers and other business men will have vehicles at the Arlington House from 6 to 7 o'clock A. M. on the Fourth, for the purpose of taking those who desire to attend the celebration at Genoa. There will be no charge for taking and returning.

—Everywhere the press and the people are falling in line on the proposition that America is for Americans. You hear it on every side. There are enough Americans in the country to elect any ticket they nominate.

BLUE JOINT.

A Nevada Grass that Grows Without Water.

Everybody has been noticing for the past month a new grass which has but recently made its appearance in this State. It appears to be spreading everywhere, and grows luxuriantly without water.

Mr. Woods, the arboriculturist, who is good authority on such matters, says that it is genuine blue joint, and that its appearance in Nevada is of more importance to this State than the discovery of another Comstock. It is a grass whose large, heavy seeds are closely allied to grain, while its chemical constituents are of the most nutritious character. The stalk grows three or four feet high, and instead of being hollow like wheat or rye, the stalk is almost solid. The roots penetrate deeply into the ground, and will find moisture to live on where other grasses will wither. It is a most symmetrical and beautiful grass to the eye, with a compact head and no superfluous beards. Its fattening qualities are unsurpassed and horses and cattle eat every portion of it.

Mr. Woods says that he has noticed wherever it has gained a foothold it drives out the tickle grass. The APPEAL is not quite sure that this claim of its good qualities can be substantiated, and it will probably take another season to fully decide this question.

The grass is a rapid seeder, and there is no reason why the sagebrush land will not in a few years be turned into vast fields of this grass. There is hardly an acre of land in this county where it cannot now be found, and two years ago there was not a spear in sight here.

Mr. Woods also says that he has been experimenting with the wild pea and finds that it grows here without irrigation, and that if the seed is sown right in among the sagebrush it will clamber over the brush in masses and afford fine fodder for stock.

This is indeed the lazy man's fodder plant. There are a good many men in Nevada who, when urged to clear sagebrush land, say it is hard and expensive, but insist that if they but had the land cleared they could do well. Give these people the wild pea to plant and they can feed their stock with no further physical exertion. The wild pea will be a great boon to these people.

Hadn't His Account at Hand.

The other day a man drove six miles to pay a Carson Valley rancher a bill. He found him on his door-step whittling.

"I've come to pay that bill."

"Haven't got my accounts just handy now, couldn't you come next week?"

"I'll be pretty busy next week."

"Well I haven't got my books posted up for the month."

"Can't you give an approximate?"

"Well you see it's this way, I kept the items jotted down every day in red chalk on the old hay wagon. Then I chalked some down on the side board of the hog cart, and the rest on the grain wagon. The hay wagon is up at Wolf creek, the hog cart is in Carson and the grain wagon I loaned to Nesbeth and I don't know where in thunder he took it. When the wagons all get back I can figure the bill up to a cent if the rain hasn't washed the chalk off the sides."

Body Found.

The APPEAL received the following dispatch yesterday:

George, youngest son of J. W. Haines, body found in Carson river 2 p. m.

The body was found a mile below where he was seen last. The body was in a good state of preservation. He will be buried today from the church in Genoa.

Drummer License Case.

The case of the State vs. Rosenblott, testing the Drummer License law, came up before the Supreme Court yesterday. It was a habeas corpus case, appealed from Washoe county. The Court took the matter under advisement, and the prisoner was placed under the nominal bail of $50.

Wanted.

A competent young woman wants a situation to do general housework. A small family preferred. For information apply to P. S. Corbett.
